LLOYD E. POWELL

The most recent recipient of the State Bar of Michigan's Frank J. Kelly Distinguished Public Service Award, Mr. Powell has practiced law in Michigan for 37 years. He spent 29 years as a chief public defender and director of the high-volume Washtenaw County Public Defender's Office. Mr. Powell's notable military career included many years of overseas service, and culminated with his appointment as chief of investigations for the Office of the Provost Marshall at US Army Headquarters in Seoul, Korea. Mr. Powell has served as both a prosecution and defense trial attorney, as well as a general practitioner in private practice.

The Cooley Law School Center for Ethics, Service, and Professionalism invites you to attend the "Integrity in Our Communities" speaker series featuring respected judges, attorneys, and community leaders sharing their thoughts about ethics, professionalism, and community service.
